whose clients were seeking to break the will.

"Well," she said, "he succeeded in getting a new trial, but he took an unfair advantage to get it. As far as Juror No. 7 is concerned, I don't know unfair advantage to get it. As far as Juror No. 7 is concerned, I don't know him, never saw him before the trial and don't want to see him again. Mr. Boyd said I smiled and winked at the man and that the man smiled and winked at me. That's absurd. As far as this No. 7 person-is concerned, he is one of those funny-looking men who is always grinning. He probably has an exaggerated sense of humor, but it's funny it didn't affect the other jurors the same way.

"Why, you'd be surprised at the appearance of that jury anyway. There wasn't more than one man there who could really be called good-looking, which. I suppose, is about the average, taking men as you find them. And that's what makes me so mad when I come to think it all over—that I'm charged with flirting with the one called No. 7.

"I had ample opportunities to be introduced to a number of the lawyers in the courtroom but turned the offers down because I realize that I might be criticised. As far as winking at that far far y-well, I wouldn't if I could. In fact, I don't know how to wink.

Fined for Taking Pictures on Sunday

BOSTON, Oct. 1.-Joseph Wojczak, a photographer of South Boston, was found guilty in court of taking pictures on the Lord's day and was fined $10.

on the Lord's day and was fined $19. He appealed.
His counsel argued it was a custom of the Pollsh people to have their pictures taken immediately after a wedding and he could see no harm in taking a picture of a wedding group on Sunday.

Judge Day replied that the Pollsh people had no more rights than others in this country, and that if they wished to take pictures on Sunday they would have to appeal to the Legislature for new laws.

"The State Department will suspend judgment until it knows the facts." Secretary Lansing said. "He added that this did not mean the United States would not take cognizance of the new German submarine campaign off the American coast, but rather that action would be reserved until all the facts are at hand."

Yet thus far, as well as officials of the American Government can judge, there is nothing that has happened in this spectacular revival of Germany's submarine warfare upon which the American Government can lodge a single protest.

So long as the circumstances of future attacks on merchantmen are no different: from those which have characterized the sinking of these six ships, the United States, has no cause for grievance, it is felt.

From a technical standpoint the conduct of submarine or any other kind of naval warfare four miles off the American coast line is no different from warfare off the coast of Great Britain. Outside the three-mile limit the Atlantic Ocean is a common battleground in time of war. battleground in time of war.

The United States has insisted ever since the attack on the American bark William P. Frye, early in the war, that passengers and crews shall not be turned loose on the open sea not be turned loose on the open sea in small boats.

Reports today tell of women and children from the British steamship Stephano, which was sunk, being out in small boats most of the night before they were rescued.

Aside from what may develop from this circumstance there are other prospects that are gravely alarming:

1. The possibility at any time that the submarines will ignore the German-American agreement. American agreement.

2. The possibility that American lives may be lost and American ships sent to the bottom.

3. The disastrous effect which the new warfare will have on American trade.

5. The possibility of a clash between the United States and the entente powers, growing out of the possible discovery of a secret submarine base established at some remote spot on the Amer-

The eyes of the nation naturally turned this morning toward President Wilson. Ears are bent in the direction of Shadow Lawn to catch the first word that will show how the President regards these latest developments.

Dispatches Noncommittal. Thus far dispatches from the summer capital are noncommittal. The President, it seems, has "his mind open." He dent, it seems, has "his mind open." He waits for more news of an official character before determining his course of action, if any action is to be taken.

In view of the known developments, however, the conference scheduled at Shadow Lawn today between the President and Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, has assumed aspects of greatest importance.

The German embassy, the State Department, and reports from Berlin have discounted the rumors that the German ambassador was to lay before the President some suggestion of importance regarding peace.

Official denial of these rumors has let it be understood that the appointment was nothing more than an engagement

Official denial of these rumors has let it be understood that the appointment was nothing more than an engagement arranged for the purpose of permitting the ambass dor to present an autograph letter from the Kaher to President Wilson on the subtract of relief for the war sufferers of Poland.

It now is bettered however, that the question of the new submarine warfare is bound to come up at the conference in some form or another. Handicapped by the meager character of the official reports, the President is not likely, it is thought to make any definite representations to the German ambassador. It is thought likely, however, that he will express the hope that the new warfare is not to be accepted as a departure from the assurances previously given by Germany.

LOSSES AT OPENING

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.-The stock market broke sharply at the opening. "War brides" showed initial losses of 2 to 9 points in the first trading. The opening was in a whirl of excitement. Quotations varied widely. United States steel sold at 109 to 112, off 4 to 7 points. On a sale of 3,000

shades, Baldwin Locomotive was down

9. Crucible 8, and Marine preferred was gown 7 to 11 points. At 10:30 some recoveries had been made. Republic Steel dropped 16 points to 60, and within a few minutes made 100, and within a few minutes made a complete recovery to 75. Within half an hour United States Steel rebounded 4 points to 112, and Union Pacific regained 5½, selling at 145½. Steel and equipment shares generally followed these leaders.

Sales during the first hour were $19,000 shares, and a million shares had been sold at 11:30. At that hour prices were down 1 to 4 points from Saturday.

At noon 1,172,000 shares had been traded, indicating a two-million-share day.

traded, indicating a two-million-share day.
Support of big interests was not sufficient to hold stocks at the creat of their recoveries, and at noon prices sagged off again. On sale of 324,000 shares United States Steel mroke to 108, recovered to 113%, then declined to 110%. After selling at 77, Republic broke to 72%, Marine preferred dropped back to 169%, and Union Pacific sold at 146%.
